Just or Unjust?

Fair or Unfair?

Dr. Martin Luther King Jr. worked to make sure laws were just (fair) for all citizens.

Read these statements with your partner and decide if you feel they are just (fair) or unjust (unfair).

Children who don't do
homework
miss recess time
to catch up.

Children who
pick on classmates are ignored.

Teachers
choose the kids with nice clothes to be Student of the Week.

Phys. Ed.
choose the
tallest children to play first.

Children who are well
behaved get to do
special projects.

Children who
raise their hands get called on to answer questions.

Children who do their work earn special privileges.

Children
with good handwriting
make the "good handwriting
board."

People who break the law go to jail.

Drivers who drive too
fast get speeding
tickets.

Voters
choose our lawmakers.

Our
make the rules of our communities.

A judge decides who is right in a court
of law.

Parents
make decisions for their children.

People with money buy expensive items.

People
without money can't buy
expensive items.

Children who
wear blue
get to cut in the lunch line.

Older
children get the best seats on the school bus.

People with
blue eyes
get to make more money.

Rich people get to have anything they want.

People who have nicer houses should have more police protection.

People with
less fancy
houses still deserve police protection.

Children who do extra
work get better
report cards.

Children who
don't participate in class get poor
report cards.

It's ok to
punch
someone if they are mean to you.

It's ok to tell the teacher if someone is mean to you.

Children
who get their work done on time get to play
games.

Children who
don't get their work done in class get extra
homework.

All citizens
have to pay taxes.

have to have a library
card.
